

Thankful for God's Promises

Verse: “For no matter how many promises God has made, they are ‘Yes’ in Christ.” — 2 Corinthians 1:20

Promises matter.

We all know the sting of a promise that wasn't kept — words spoken with good intentions that never turned into action. Over time, that kind of disappointment can make us guarded, cautious, and hesitant to trust. But God is not like people. When God makes a promise, He keeps it. His promises don't expire. They don't depend on our moods or our circumstances. They don't break under pressure or disappear when life gets complicated. Some of God's promises come quickly. Others take time. Some unfold in ways we never expected.

But every single one of them is trustworthy. God promises:

- to never leave us or forsake us
- to be near to the brokenhearted
- to give us strength when we are weak
- to provide what we need
- to guide our steps
- to work all things for good
- to give us peace that surpasses understanding

And here's something we often forget:

God's promises are not cancelled by delays.

Waiting doesn't mean God forgot.

Silence doesn't mean God said no.

A closed door doesn't mean the promise was revoked.

Sometimes God is working behind the scenes — aligning timing, preparing hearts, strengthening faith, and setting things in motion we can't yet see.

Think about the promises God has already kept in your life.

There were moments you didn't think you'd make it — and yet here you are.

There were prayers you whispered through tears — and God answered in His perfect way.

Every fulfilled promise is proof that God is faithful.

And every unfulfilled promise is proof that God is not finished yet.

So today, be thankful not only for the promises you've seen come to pass, but also for the ones you're still waiting on.

Because if God promised it, He will do it — in His time and in His way.

Lord, today we thank You for Your promises — promises that are unchanging, unbreakable, and rooted in Your faithfulness.

Thank You for every promise You've already fulfilled and every promise You are still working on.

For those listening who are waiting, trusting, and praying for answers, strengthen their faith today.

Help them hold onto Your Word when circumstances feel uncertain and remind them that delays do not mean denial.

Teach us to trust Your timing, lean into Your truth, and rest in the assurance that You always keep Your promises.

We are grateful for the hope, peace, and confidence found in You alone. In Jesus' Name we pray, Amen.
