

Excessive Rainfall Possible Sunday into Tuesday

May 9, 2025
4:28 PM

For the Western Carolinas and Northeast Georgia

OVERVIEW

A prolonged period of heavy rainfall is expected from Sunday night through Tuesday across most of the area.

TIMING

- The heaviest rainfall rates/amounts are expected Sunday night into Tuesday.

HAZARDS & IMPACTS

- Some isolated areas of nuisance to minor flooding are possible.
- Rainfall amounts can be found on slide 2.

NWS ALERTS

- None at this time.

FORECAST CHALLENGES

- If the low lingers over the area longer and/or if the environment ends up being more unstable then rainfall rates/amounts may increase.

NEXT BRIEFING

- By 5pm EDT Saturday, May 10th.

Storm Total Rainfall

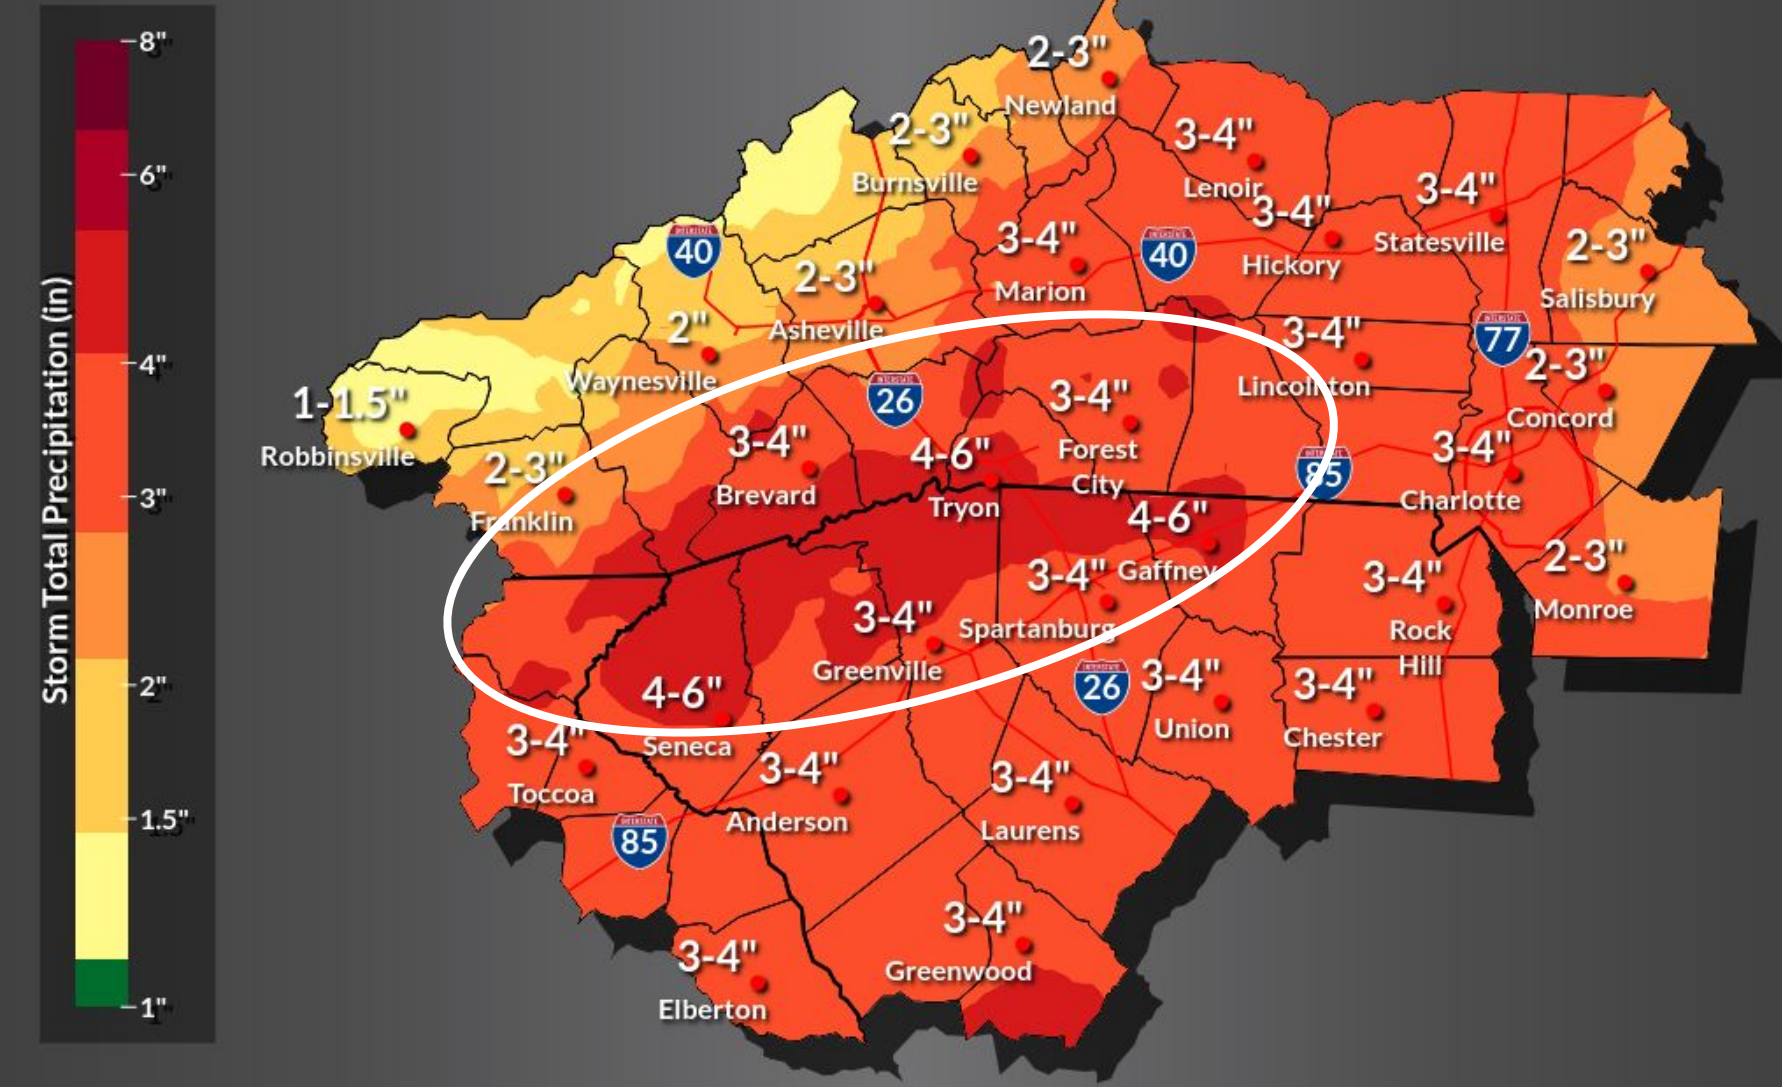

May 9, 2025
4:28 PM

Sunday into Tuesday

Storm Total Rainfall

Sunday through Tuesday

Weather Forecast Office
Greenville-Spartanburg
Issued May 09, 2025 3:56 PM EDT

- Rainfall amounts should be lowest along the NC/TN border with 2 to 4 inches expected across most of the forecast area.
- Area circled in white should to see the highest rainfall amounts through the event.
- Rainfall amounts are subject to change as we get closer to the event.

Facebook and X: @NWSGSP

weather.gov/gsp

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration
U.S. Department of Commerce

National Weather Service
Greenville-Spartanburg, SC