

Today's Q106 Cold Weather Excuse Note

_____ is excused from work today due to extremely frigid temps. Said employee will not be in, instead will stay home, in their jammies, taking shelter inside the comfort and protection of a blanket fort. This will seem like fun, until the kids wake up and start a chorus of "I'm bored." followed by a melody of "mom, mom, mom, mom, MOM!" making aforementioned employee wish they had come to work instead.

We here at Today's Q106 understand that there's work to be done, and losing one integral employee for the day could hinder productivity. But keep in mind, the first two hours of their workday is spent on social media, followed by an afternoon of extended bathroom breaks, texting dinner plans with their spouse, and sprinkle in many trips to the coffee machine/water cooler, stopping to discuss office gossip with fellow co-workers, resulting in even less production around the office. we'd be surprised if you notice a difference between them being at work and not. In fact, it might be more productive if they're not. But don't fire them. That would be bad for morale
